

My Year at ASU

by Tatyna Mamytova

It has been a year since I have been studying here at ASU. Although it is not a densely populated learning place, it remains exciting and interesting. Education was always highly privileged in my family. That is why I decided to study in the US as a psychology major, even if it required a lot of money. I am from Kyrgyzstan, a country located in Middle Asia. Many young people would want to be in my place since they want to study abroad, but not all of them gain support from their families or have enough money to learn here. I like it because it is quiet when needed and entertaining when I need it.

ASU at Lake Havasu was the best option for me. ASU meets a lot of requirements that are essential for me. For example, it was vital for me to get my professor's help and support during my study. My professors are always ready to help and give their feedback. My favorite class is communication. This class taught me many life lessons and how human communication developed many aspects of life. Also, as I mentioned before, I needed a quiet space to study, and ASU at Lake Havasu is a perfect place to focus on your tasks and not waste your time on unnecessary things. Also, studying, playing something, or doing sports like volleyball helps me a lot when I get bored. The location of ASU at Lake Havasu is also great because many fascinating cities like Las Vegas, Flagstaff, Phoenix, and others are within a few hours of the ride. It is great to plan with my friends where to go. I recommend this place for people who want to achieve many things and dedicate themselves to something useful, such as education.
